

Sample homily writing:

This weekend I went to Mass at St. Matthew's. There was a visiting missionary priest. He read his homily off his phone. I thought that was unique. The deacon read the Gospel, but the priest gave the homily. The priest talked about growing up with his five siblings. His mother would read or tell them a bible story each night. He saw that as a great gift from his mom. She was passing her faith on to her children.

The Gospel was about the Sadducees trying to trick Jesus by asking him which husband would a woman be with in heaven. Jesus said there would be no need to worry. Relationships in heaven are not like those on Earth. It made me think about making sure that I am treating people as I should here on Earth so that I can experience all the greatness of heaven. I don't want to go to heaven any time soon, but I am working on being ready and worthy when the time comes.

This week was also All Saints' Day and All Souls' Day. I loved the Book of Life prayer service we did in the hall. It's so important to remember all the special people in our lives who have died. The Book of Life helps remind us to pray for them.
